The Importance of Children's Ministry in Reaching our Community for Jesus

"Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these." - Jesus

I am confident that a thriving children's ministry is a one of the quickest ways to grow a healthy church. It is our opportunity to sow into the next generation of spiritual leaders and bring a great future to Zion Hill Baptist Church. Creating a safe, exciting, and inviting space where kids can learn about Jesus should get us excited. Children are the greatest and most significant mission field in our community!

Parents will do what's best for their children. That means they'll choose a church with a great children's ministry — if our church doesn't have one, they'll go somewhere else. Put yourselves in the shoes of a new family visiting our church. If they bring their kids to the children's area to check-in and see one volunteer in a dingy room with decor and toys that haven't been updated in twenty years, do you think they'll want to leave their kids there? Do you think the kids will want to come back?

On the flip side, if they see a space that communicates fun and activity, they'll see that we value their children. If kids have a great time in our children's ministry and are excited to come back, their parents will as well! Plus, if parents are excited about what's happening at our church, they're much more likely to invite their friends and neighbors to come.

As a bonus, families with kids participating in our children's ministry are also more likely to volunteer in our church. They see us investing in their children and want to help contribute to the work the church is doing. This may mean they volunteer with our children's ministry or that they step up in another area that needs help. Either way, we're increasing the engagement of our people.

If we build a reputation for having a fantastic children's ministry, our opportunities for outreach will also increase. Parents who may not attend church themselves often want their children to grow up with some sort of faith structure. If our children's ministry invites, brings, and ministers to these kids, we'll have opportunities to reach their parents as well.

The love of Jesus doesn't change, but the way we present the Bible and its teachings to children should adapt to the way kids learn. Much of what worked in the 1990's doesn't work in 2024, and that's okay! It should be a fun challenge to keep evolving the ways we engage our kids in children's ministry. Kids know when something is outdated — we need to be able to teach them in a language that they'll feel comfortable with.

Are kids excited to arrive every Sunday? Are they telling their parents about what they learned when church is over? They should be!

We are getting ready to go full court press on children's ministry in 2025. Our church has an incredible heart for children. Soon we'll be revealing new plans to reach our community for Christ through children and their parents. Pray for our leadership as we plan and prepare for some exciting things to come.

Until everyone knows Jesus,

Pastor Michael
